The soul leaves its footprint in tears - How consciousness shapes matter

Different crystal patterns of tears of joy and sorrow, as shown in the short film above, can be explained from various perspectives. Consciousness-related theories and experiments (à la Emoto, Kröplin, Warnke) ...

Different crystal patterns of tears of joy and sorrow, as shown in the short film above, can be explained from various perspectives. Consciousness-related theories and experiments (à la Emoto, Kröplin, Warnke) show that our emotions can structure - possibly through quantum physical effects or information fields.

Dr. Ulrich Warnke is a German bioscientist who has intensively studied the interplay between mind and matter. His assessments can help place the approaches mentioned above in a larger framework:

It's good.
to be truu.